Introduction: This walk from Burley-in-Wharfedale exploits the recently (summer 2013) restored Burley stepping stones across the river Wharfe. It must be emphasised that these stones are only exposed when the river is low. The Wharfe rises (and falls) very quickly, so after any kind of wet spell, they are likely to be under water. In these circumstances, do not attempt a crossing. At best the stones will be slippery and you will probably get wet. Worst case, you could be swept away. It pays to have a reserve walk in mind, just in case.

On the happyhiker webpage for this walk is a real time gauge indicator of the river level at Ilkley, some 4 miles upstream. This will give some indication of the likelihood of the stepping stones being available.

Repair of the stepping stones adds welcome new possibilities to walks from this village.

A look at the OS map will show all round this route there are many footpath options. The directions are therefore necessarily wordy to keep you on the right track.

The route passes very briefly through Askwith, then through the Denton Estate to the small village of Denton, before progressing to Ben Rhydding where there is the possibility of refreshment at the Wheatley Arms. It also passes Ben Rhydding train station, where the walk can be cut short by returning by train to Burley, if exhaustion or excess “refreshment” has set in!

From various vantage points, there are good views of lower Wharfedale.

Some road walking is involved but this is mostly on quiet roads.

The walk starts from Burley-in-Wharfedale train station. There is a car park but weekdays is filled by Leeds commuters. There is parking behind the Queens Hall on Main Street and another close to where the route turns off Main Street.

Additionally, there is what is in effect a large lay-by on the north side of the A65 just after the roundabout at the western (Ilkley) end of the Burley-in-Wharfedale dual carriageway by-pass. If you park here, walk back to the roundabout and take the first

The path goes through a tunnel under the A65 Burley bypass and meets a lane. This is Leatherbank although there is no sign #. Follow this lane to the right. It eventually becomes a stony track and about 100 yards from the end of the tarmac, turn left to the river Wharfe and cross the river via the stepping stones (SE 166474). Note the old mill leat which now supplies a hydroelectricity plant and the weir.

On the north bank, bear left about 45° to a walkers' gate in the corner of the field. Follow the next field along its left hand boundary and through another walkers' gate. Views of Wharfedale and the Cow and Calf rocks start to open up. Continue your line of travel in a straight line, arriving at the road in Askwith via a narrow walled footpath. Turn left along the road.

Stay on the road for about 300 yards and when it bends sharply left, take the tarmac lane off the bend on the right (SE 167484). Continue along the lane past Scales House Farm where the tarmac turns to a stony track. Stay on it, passing a small lake. When the track bends right at 90° to go to Whin Hill Farm, go left here, through a farm gate (SE 160500). There is a yellow footpath arrow on the gatepost.

Go over a ladder stile bear left towards the trees and turn right to follow an obvious broad track, to a gate with a yellow arrow. Once through the gate, just ahead of you on the left is a stile to a path through the trees, crossing a small stone bridge.

The path through the trees is fairly clear but is marked here and there with yellow tape on tree trunks and posts.

Exit the trees over a stile (SE 158503) and at this point is a great view over Wharfedale towards Ilkley and Ilkley Moor. The route from the stile across the field may not be all that clear if it has not been walked recently. Bear slightly right (305° magnetic) towards the copse of trees. As you get closer to the trees, you will see a ladder stile. Go over this and turn right on a broad track (SE 155505). Pass a small lake.

As the track swings right over a cattle grid, to the farm (Dunkirk) go left through the gate ahead marked with a yellow footpath arrow and follow the obvious track along the left hand side of the field to its corner where there are two gates. Go through the one straight ahead and turn left to follow the wall.

Keep to the left of the next field to a gate and turn left on the broad track (SE 146508). As the track starts to swing to the right, head left and cross the ladder stile at the corner by the trees.

From this stile, cross the field bearing right aiming to meet the opposite wall about half way along (175° magnetic from the ladder stile). You are looking for a stone step stile over the far wall. If unsure, you could turn right and follow the wall round until you meet it. Cross this stile and head downhill for the left corner of the field and cross the fence (the "stile" here is a series of wooden bars). Go straight ahead until you meet the wall before the farm (Yarnet House farm) and turn right (SE 147501).

At the bottom of the field, go through the five bar gate by the power pole and keep straight ahead. Aim for the left hand end of the bank of trees ahead. Your route is now in more or less a straight line until you meet the road at Denton (Smithy Lane). Yellow footpath arrows guide you. Turn right at the road.

As you approach the hamlet of Denton, note the little St. Helens Church with its unusual round tower. If you want a closer look, turn left at the post box and telephone box. The presence of a church here dates back to the 14th century but the current building opened in 1776.

Return to the centre of the hamlet and turn left at the pretty village green. The strange stone object on the green is a late 18th century former well head and fountain (according to English Heritage). There is a bench here where you can sit for sandwiches.

Follow the road to the 'T' junction, turn right for just under half a mile then go left over the Iron Bridge (road sign for Ilkley). Be careful here as the bridge is single track and quite busy. At the main A65, turn right for a mere 100 yards (pavement) then go left up Wheatley Lane.

Walk under the railway bridge and as it bends right, fork left. To visit the Wheatley Arms, continue up Wheatley Lane 2/300 yards. Otherwise, turn immediately left to walk up Ben Rhydding Drive, between the stone gateposts. You follow Ben Rhydding Drive for three quarters of a mile to the entrance to Audley Clevedon Retirement Village then turn right (SE 143468). There are good views over Denton Moor.

Pass Wharfedale Grange Farm and as the track forks, go left. As the track swings to the right, take the footpath on the left through a kissing gate. The path descends to another kissing gate and you cross a stream via two large stone slabs.

Through this gate bear left descending gently at about 45° to the opposite corner. Go through another gate and follow the walled track to join a broad track where you turn right. When the track splits, keep right. Do not go straight ahead to the barns. The route follows the broad track around the area of the barns and through the farmyard.
